A large percentage of electronic commerce is conducted entirely electronically for virtual items such as access to premium content on a website, but most electronic commerce involves the transportation of physical items in some way. Almost all big retailers have electronic commerce presence on the World Wide Web today.

Electronic commerce (E-Commerce) can be open to all interested parties (e.g. business or personal). E-Commerce that is conducted between businesses and consumers, on the other hand, is referred to as business-to-consumer or B2C. This is the type of electronic commerce conducted by companies such as Amazon.com.

Electronic commerce (E-Commerce) is generally considered to be the sales aspect of business over the Internet. It consists of the exchange of data to facilitate the financing and payment aspects of a business transaction.

The Future of E-Commerce

The e-commerce world is booming. In the United States e-commerce are increasing at roughly 20% per year. This indicates that a growing number of sales are moving from traditional sales avenues to e-commerce.

In South Africa e-commerce is also increasing with online spending increasing by 35%. These statistics paint the picture that e-commerce is rapidly growing in South Africa.
